A. Read the following passage and answer all the questions that follow. (15 marks)

1 After his wife passed away, Pak Ali moved in with son, Samad, daughter-in-law, and their four-year-old son. Pak Ali loved his grandson very much and spent all his time with him, especially when the boy's parents went off to work.

2 The family made it a point to get together for dinner every night. Being very old, Pak Ali had poor eyesight and unsteady hands. So, eating became a chore. He dropped his food and spilled his milk all over the table and floor. He even broke some of the plates and glasses. Samad and his wife became irritated with the mess the old man made. They also scolded him for being careless.

3 The next day, they set up a small table in a corner and made the old man eat there from a wooden bowl. Meanwhile, they continued eating at the dinner table. The little boy looked at his grandfather and saw him crying. He walked up to him, wiped away the old man's tears and said, "Don't cry grandpa." One evening, Samad and his wife noticed their son playing with little pieces of wood. "What are you doing?" they asked him. The little boy responded, "Oh, I'm making wooden bowls for you and mama to eat your food from when you're old."

4 Samad and his wife were speechless. They were shocked and realised how cruel they had been to the old man. That evening, they held Pak Ali's hand and led him back to the dinner table. From that day onwards, he ate every meal with the family. And for some reason, neither husband nor wife seemed to care any longer when a fork was dropped or milk spilled.

1 My brother is fifteen years older than me and lived further north of the country. When I was a little girl, I seldom saw him. He would come home once or twice in a year during special occasions. It was so much fun when he was around that I counted the days, weeks, months and years until I would see him again. My absolute favourite memory was when he was home on my 8th birthday.

2 My mother had always been gravely ill throughout my childhood which meant we did not get to do a lot of celebration. That year, thankfully she was well enough to bake a cake for my birthday. She had baked her famous German chocolate cake with the pecan and coconut icing. Baking it was difficult and time-consuming, which made it usually reserved for special occasions. I felt special and blessed that she baked it for me on my big day.

3 My big brother was home and ready with a present. I was beaming and could not imagine what was in the package. I saw that the present was thin and flat. It looked to be bigger than a book but not thick enough to be one. I did not know how I made it through dinner and cake as my excitement was out of control.

4 He handed me the package, my birthday present. He said I was to be careful when I opened it. Upon opening the present, my excitement faded by seconds when I saw that I got three CDs of my favourite singers. It was lovely that my brother had been so attentive to know my favourite singers, and thoughtful of him to buy those CDs for me. I had no heart to tell him I had no way of playing those CDs because I did not have a CD player. It was still quite pricey to own one at that time.

5 My brother must have sensed my disappointment but he sat there smiling at me. I thanked him, hugged him and turned away as I wanted to go to my room. My mother stopped me though and she handed me another present. I did not understand. I had already received my gift. My brother's eyes twinkled as he watched us. I ripped the paper and ribbon off. My mother said that this present was also from my brother. I could not believe my eyes as it was my very own CD player. I had never received such an extravagant gift. I was so happy, I cried. It was one birthday I would always remember.

6 My brother is now in his eighties and is struggling with his health. I wish I could tell him one last time how much I love him and how much his gifts meant to me.
